With an eye for the solution

Company founder André Braun is the owner of BRAUN Lighting Solutions e.K. Before founding his first company in 2001, he worked successfully for many years as Head of Maintenance at Berlin-based natural gas supplier GASAG. As the first contact for historical gas lighting, André Braun discovered his great passion for lighting and already then developed his own innovative business ideas. Today, customers of BRAUN still benefit from the decades of his expertise in historical gas lighting.

The former „Mister Gas Lighting“, as he is known to market participants, today runs a successful company with more than 60 employees. He is a sought-after master and expert in the field of LED lighting technology. Anyone who knows him knows that André Braun is undoubtedly creative. He always thinks and acts solution-oriented, in the customer’s interest. It is not unusual for him to put himself into production in order to push the latest ideas technically or develop solutions for difficult lighting situations. The passion for light and his sheer boundless interest in the latest technology flow into every product development. The motivation to simply create ingenious lighting and its spirit have a lasting influence on the corporate identity.
