

Tegeler Island residential district, Berlin

Initial situation:

In early 2015, exclusive townhouses on Tegeler Island in Berlin's Reinickendorf district were completed directly on the waterfront.

Customer request and order:

The modern residential district required equally modern and glare-free street and path lighting. The lighting planners also envisaged a low lighting solution on the ground.

The solution from BRAUN:

BRAUN was awarded the contract for the tender procedure and supplied 50 blade bollard luminaires in a dark, elegant and UV-resistant finish. The light steles close to the ground underline the luxurious character of the housing estate and enthused not only the lighting planners.
